DIVISION OF STUDENT AFFAIRS
INDIANA UNIVERSITY—PURDUE UNIVERSITY INDIANAPOLIS
This guide is to provide resources to faculty members about why, how and what opportunities exist to integrate co-curricular learning into their classrooms.

Why Co-Curricular Learning (pg. 3)
The first section provides research regarding the important role that co-curricular learning plays in the holistic development of a college student. Included are tips to integrate co-curricular learning into the classroom, sample assignments and an event report for students to reflect on their experience as a participant of a campus event.

Presentations (pg. 9)
The Division of Student Affairs offers a variety of presentations to inform students of the opportunities and resources available to support their educational experiences. These presentations are meant to compliment your work in the classroom. Students will learn about the campus community, how to get involved, social justice education, health and wellness, and much more. Some of these presentations are meant to focus on developing skills and identifying their strengths to allow them to become more confident in their ability to succeed.

Programming Guide (pg. 13)
There are events happening throughout every semester that provides students with development opportunities. This program guide is a comprehensive list of programs sponsored by the Division of Student Affairs through the fall 2014 semester. Each program has been connected to the Principles of Undergraduate Learning (PULs) and Principles of Co-Curricular Learning (PCLs), so faculty can determine what will apply to the course learning objectives.

Why Co-Curricular Learning

Connecting Themed Learning Communities (TLC) and First Year Seminar courses (FYS) with other campus programs and activities can provide students with positive co-curricular learning experiences. Research describes the numerous institutional and student benefits of campus involvement:

- Student’s involvement in co-curricular activities directly correlates to higher levels of student engagement and success in the classroom and positively influences their connection to the institution (Ishler & Upcraft, 2005).
- Students react positively to interactions and support from faculty members outside of the classroom and feel encouraged to devote more effort to their education (Kuh, 2003; Isher & Upcraft, 2005).
- Student participation in various campus activities are positively associated with student learning and retention (Ishler & Upcraft, 2005).
- According to the National Survey for Student Engagement (NSSE) students who are involved in out-of-class activities are more likely to have diverse experiences (Kuh, 2003). Having multicultural interactions and relationships challenges students to see other perspectives and learn to effectively work with people from different backgrounds.
- The more students are academically and socially involved, the more likely they are to persist and graduate (Tinto, 2000).

Themed Learning Communities offer the opportunity for students to experience a community of peer support as well as ability to explore themes in context and interact with faculty and staff both inside and outside of the classroom. Integration of co-curricular activities into TLCs allows for greater student success along with faculty being able to demonstrate their commitment to creating a seamless learning environment.

Tips Faculty Should Consider when Integrating Co-Curricular Learning into Your Course

- Consider requiring attendance at co-curricular activities as part of the curriculum for the course. Attendance and participation should be awarded points so students understand the importance. Utilize the sample Campus Events Report Form.

- List out-of-class events on the course syllabus and discuss them on the first day of class.

- Encourage all members of the TLC instructional team to attend the out-of-class events together. This allows for increased student and faculty interaction and learning. It also provides opportunity for informal reflection to occur following the event.

- Ask students to reflect on their experience. Reflection can occur right after an event through a discussion on what the students learned, asking students to write a paper detailing their experience, or a formal follow-up in a class discussion allowing for group dialogue.

- Collaborate with staff from the Office of Educational Partnerships and Student Advocacy in developing educationally purposeful learning activities that support the theme of your course. If you need additional assistance, email Gwen Chastain at ghobley@iupui.edu.

- Additional information will be sent through the Campus Connections eNewsletter throughout the fall and spring semesters. This will go to the TLC/FYS faculty, advisors, mentors, and librarians. This is sent out every Monday throughout the academic year.

Suggestions on Connecting In-Classroom with Out-of-Classroom Learning

- Utilize your resources. The Division of Student Affairs offers many resources for faculty members to help the connection and reflection process through interactive workshops that include but are not limited to: Educating students on the importance of campus and student involvement, diversity and social justice, civic engagement, community service, conflict management, and health and wellness. A complete list may be found at http://studentaffairs.iupui.edu/involved/first-year-programs/faculty-resources/index.shtml.

- Plan class topics to align with co-curricular programs. This allows for immediate connections; build up to the event and allow for intentional conversations that can challenge students to come to conclusions on their own.

- Assign writing/journal entries on the experiences. This encourages students to think critically about their experiences and allow you as the instructor to measure where the students are in thought process and if they are applying what they learned to the classroom learning.

- Facilitate group dialogue on shared experiences. Building group discussions into the class following the event allows students to share their thoughts in the group setting which can provide the opportunity for learning from their peers.

- Use case studies to supplement learning. Creating scenarios for the students to work through individually or in groups that relate to the activities they attend allows the students to demonstrate their learning in a practical way. This can also allow for you to assess whether the students are building connections to class topics.
Sample Assignments to Connect the Curricular and Co-Curricular Learning

Connect to Yourself – Introductory Assignment
- During the first several weeks of the semester, students are getting in touch with why they are in college, who they are, and what they want to accomplish. They are identifying their needs, interests and goals. As students become more aware of themselves, they create a foundation to begin building networks that will support them. (Adapted from Northern Kentucky University)
- Students complete the typology assessments such as Strength’s Quest, Myers Briggs Type Indicator or Holland Code to identify strengths, personality, conflict resolution and career interests.
- Goal Setting: help students identify SMART (specific, measurable, attainable, realistic, timely) goals and begin thinking about what is available at IUPUI to support them.
- Activity/Assignment/Reflection: Students will be asked to synthesize information they have discovered about themselves, i.e. interests, goals, and services available at IUPUI. Recommend that students write a reflection paper or conduct a brief presentation to class about their strengths, goals, and areas they plan to utilize at IUPUI to help them move forward in their academic and career planning.

Involvement Expo
Require your student to join a pre-professional or student leadership organization and/or volunteer with a Community Service Agency. By attending the Involvement Expo during Weeks of Welcome students will have an opportunity to explore a variety of organizations both on and off campus. Ask them to write a reflection paper about the student organization or community service agency they chose, how it connects to their future goals and/or interests and what they hope to contribute as a member or volunteer. Conduct a follow-up with the student mid-semester to see if they have indeed contributed as they had expected.

My IUPUI Story
As we all know college flies by, so have students take time to carefully consider what they want out of their college career. Have them map out their four years at IUPUI; students should consider whether they would like to study abroad, join student organizations, participate in campus traditions, get an internship, etc. Have them create SMART goals in order to accomplish those goals and create a timeline. Additionally, research contacts, programs and dates so they are ready to take the next steps towards accomplishing their goals. Encourage the students to interview faculty, staff and student leaders about their experiences and how they reached their goals to help them develop their own plan.

IUPUI History, Pride and Traditions
This assignment will allow your students to practice the skills of evaluating resources and conducting college-level research while exploring the rich history of the IUPUI campus. Students will be assigned to a group of classmates and each team will select an area of the University history, traditions, and culture to explore. A list of possible topics will be provided which may include Jaguar athletics, Greek life, student life, the role of women on campus, homecoming, alumni involvement, student governance, various academic programs, community engagement, past leadership and organizational structure, student services, etc. Each group will submit one researched based paper that will be collectively developed by the team members. Each group will share their impressions of their topic through an in-class presentation and offer suggestions on new programs and initiatives to build upon campus pride and traditions. The presentations will be 10 minutes in length and will include a visual component such as Power Point, media, tri-fold, etc. Invite representatives from Division of Student Affairs to judge the presentations (and perhaps incorporate ideas from their presentations into future program initiatives).
Connect to Your Network Assignment - Attend the Campus Center Open House and/or Campus and Community Connections Fair

Request your student to identify and establish a relationship with at least one person on campus to be in their network. Provide an opportunity for students to intentionally and formally begin to build their network. This action will help them understand the relationship between identifying sources of support and then ACTING upon that knowledge. (Adapted from Northern Kentucky University)

- Encourage or assign students to interview or meet with a person(s) on campus to find out more about that person
- Activity/Assignment/Reflection: Students share why they chose this person or office; what they learned from the interview; what they would like to share with others in the class about their choice; and how they envision expanding their network.
- Between mid-term and the end of the semester, students could be asked to identify at least one other person, meet with that person, and have an established network of at least two people. Student should be able to do this more on their own with periodic check in.
- An end of semester assignment could include an essay and/or a presentation related to building success networks at IUPUI and how will it benefit them throughout their college career and beyond.

Taking a Stand: What is Important to You

Require your student to identify an issue that is of importance to them.

- Develop a Wiki outlining the key components of the issue, why it is of value to the student, how others can get involved. Include photos, related links, where you can go to learn more (on and off campus), etc. Then require them to share their webpage with classmates and allow for a community discussion or blog. You could provide examples of issues they may want to address.

- Another suggestion on how to incorporate this into a course assignment may be to ask the student to develop an educational program that could be hosted on campus to educate other students about the issue they choose. What would the program entail? Who else from the campus and surrounding community should be involved? What do they hope others will learn from attending the program?

- The Office of Educational Partnerships and Student Advocacy offers many interactive workshops that can assist in introducing students to diversity, social justice, civic engagement, and community service. Visit http://studentaffairs.iupui.edu/involved/first-year-programs/faculty-resources/index.shtml to request a presentation.

Several events could connect with this assignment throughout the Fall:
- Social Justice Fair during Weeks of Welcome
- Faces of America performance during Weeks of Welcome
- Bystander Empowerment and Sexual Assault Prevention programs
- Alcohol Awareness 101 programs
- Advancing Women Mentoring Program
- Leadership Foundations series
- Cultural Heritage Months

Student Leader Panel Discussion

Work with your mentor to put together a group of student leaders to share their experiences at IUPUI. It is also a great opportunity to highlight student organizations connected to a specific field of study. Contact the Office of Educational Partnerships and Student Advocacy to coordinate a panel of student leaders at fyp@iupui.edu.
Faces of America Performance
Require your students to attend the program scheduled during Weeks of Welcome (refer to program guide for more information). Following the program, ask your students to write a reflection paper about the performance. Sample reflection questions:

1. What character(s) did you connect with the most and why?
2. What character(s) were difficult for you to relate to and why?
3. Which character do you think you'll find at IUPUI?

Community Service Project
iServe program on Saturday, September 6th or United Way Day of caring on October 3rd
Benjamin Barber (1992) wrote that “community service is an essential component of democratic citizenship. Service to the neighborhood and to the nation are not the gift of altruists but a duty of free men and women whose freedom is itself wholly dependent on the assumption of political responsibilities” (p. 246) Students will be able to expand their learning about their neighborhoods by participating in a service project that will benefit the IUPUI or surrounding Indianapolis community.
As a group, you can decide if the class would like to participate in a collective project or if, in small groups, students want to explore opportunities specifically of interest or write a personal reflection of the experience and the impact that performing service had on you and the impact you made on the community.

Paw’s Pantry: A Yearlong Volunteer Opportunity
Paw’s Pantry is a student ran food pantry in the IUPUI Campus Center that exists to serve all students, faculty, and staff through collaboration with the campus and community by fulfilling the need for an adequate food supply to promote success. During the academic year, Paw’s Pantry is open every Wednesday and Thursday from 9:00AM-6:00PM. The Pantry is always looking for dedicated volunteers that can assist shoppers and organize the Pantry during these hours. Sign up to volunteer for any 2 hour shift at: http://pawspantry.iupui.edu/signup.html

Contact Jen Halford in Office of Student Involvement at jhalford@iupui.edu for other ideas on how to incorporate service into the classroom.

AlcoholEdu Shared Experience Reflection
Did you know? All incoming undergraduate students were expected to complete a 2 hour online course on the topic of personal choices, alcohol education, and risk reduction prior to beginning classes at IUPUI. This course, called AlcoholEdu, now serves as a shared experience among first-year students and provides an excellent opportunity for additional reflection in an academic setting.

- Driving Questions: How is alcohol portrayed in popular culture? Are drinking consequences isolated to the individual, or are there secondary outcomes that affect others? What are the pros and cons of drinking? What barriers prevent people from seeking addiction recovery services?
- Assignment Ideas: Have students critically analyze the portrayal of alcohol in the media by collecting and reflecting on advertisements found online and in magazines. Have students create pros and cons lists about drinking – what strategies can be used to minimize or eliminate the cons? (e.g. risk-reduction behaviors, including but not limited to abstinence).
- For more information about AlcoholEdu contact Eric Teske at erictesk@iupui.edu
Indiana Lifeline Law Critical Analysis
The Indiana Lifeline Law (http://indianalifeline.org/) provides immunity from underage drinking and public intoxication laws for individuals or groups who call the police in response to a crime, sexual offense, or health emergency. Proponents of the recently expanded law say that it will increase the likelihood that people receive emergency care by removing the fear of consequences for voluntarily disclosing underage drinking. Opponents argue that the law condones underage drinking and promotes excessive alcohol use by removing the threat of legal consequences. Students will learn about the local legislative process and engage their critical thinking skills by researching the Indiana Code and considering the potential implications of amnesty laws.

- Assignment Ideas: Have students survey their peers to determine if the Indiana Lifeline Law is commonly known, or identify any misperceptions, and submit results to State Senator Jim Merritt. Write an essay identifying the major arguments for and against the Lifeline Law, and conclude by supporting your opinion with research. Design a social media campaign to raise awareness about the Indiana Lifeline Law.

Haven Shared Experience Next Steps
Students will demonstrate their ability to recognize and effectively manage ambiguous ideas, experiences and situations with a sexual assault awareness video assignment. Did you know? All incoming undergraduate students were expected to complete a 1 hour online course on the topic of sexual assault awareness education and prevention. This course, called Haven, now serves as a shared experience among first-year students and provides an excellent opportunity to develop critical thinking skills while engaging in a highly complex topic.

- Driving Questions: Are there contradictory messages about sex in our society? How do traditional views of masculine and feminine identities influence the risk for sexual assault? Define sober consent, and describe the relationship between alcohol and sexual violence. Make a video showing how you would explain the concept of sober consent to a high school senior transitioning to college.
- For more information about the Haven online program, contact Eric Teske at erictesk@iupui.edu
Campus Event Report

Consider requiring attendance at co-curricular activities as part of the curriculum for the course. Attendance and participation should be awarded points so students understand the importance. Here is a sample form you could have your student complete following the event.

To get all the points for each event:

- Attend the event
- Complete the form/answer questions below
- Write about the event (approximately 2 pages typed, double-spaced, 12-point font) using your notes
- Include a title on your paper
- Attach this cover page

Event: ________________________________________________________________

Request a presentation

Presentations are generally one hour, but may be tailored to fit the class’ needs based on time, specific topic or projects that can be tied to the presentation. Please be sure to specify any modifications in your presentation request and the presenter will contact you directly.

Plan Ahead
The presentation form requires the following information:
- Faculty Name
- Faculty Email
- Faculty Phone Number
- Class Section
- Class Location
- Preferred Date
- Preferred Time
- Number of Participants
- Presentation Topic
- Any Modifications

Next Steps
After the presentation request has been submitted you will receive a confirmation within 5 business days of the submission. Please submit the request no later than two weeks prior to the presentation date. You may be contacted by the presenter for more information regarding class demographics, major, etc.

You will receive a confirmation/reminder email two days before the presentation date. If you need to cancel the presentation please contact us at fyp@iupui.edu immediately.
Know the Code: Understanding Indiana University’s Code of Student Rights, Responsibilities, and Conduct
Sponsored by: Office of Student Conduct
This interactive presentation focuses on the rights and responsibilities of all IUPUI students as outlined in the Indiana University Code of Student Rights, Responsibilities, and Conduct. Specifically, students will learn about the definitions of various types of academic and personal misconduct, the most common acts of personal misconduct, and potential consequences of Code violations. The Indiana Lifeline Law, sexual misconduct, and bystander intervention techniques will also be discussed.

Principles of Co-Curricular Learning: Core Communication (PCL 1), Critical Thinking (PCL 2), Understanding Society and Culture (PCL 5), Values and Ethics (PCL 6)
- Time: 45 minutes- 1 hour
- Technology Needs: Computer/projector

Learning to Navigate Independent Living
Sponsored by: Housing and Residence Life and the Office of Educational Partnerships and Student Advocacy, Off-Campus Student Services
This session will provide guidelines and tips for managing independent living for the first time. Students will also be encouraged to think beyond the four walls in finding balance between wants and needs. Topics include the transition to living on your own, understanding expectations, living with a roommate, and managing a living space. An activity will engage students in understanding their “wants” vs. “needs”, and how wants can correspond to an increased price tag.

Principles of Co-Curricular Learning: Integration and Application of Knowledge (PCL3), Intellectual Depth, Breadth, and Adaptiveness (PCL 4), Intrapersonal Development (PCL 7)
- Time: 30 minutes
- Technology Needs: Computer/projector

What is Community Service?
Sponsored by: The Office of Student Involvement, Community Service and Civic Engagement
This presentation is designed to show students the importance of being an active member in society and what type of impact they can have through service. Students will learn about opportunities to volunteer and be involved in the IUPUI and Indianapolis communities.

Principles of Co-Curricular Learning: Integration and Application of Knowledge (PCL 3)
Understanding Society and Culture (PCL 5)
- Time: 45 minutes
- Technology Needs: Computer/projector

Understanding Hazing and its Effects on Students
Sponsored by: The Office of Student Involvement, Fraternity and Sorority Life
The presentation introduces students to the concept of physical and mental hazing through discussion, videos, and real life accounts on hazing. Students will have the opportunity to ask questions, learn preventative measures, and understand how to work with individuals who they suspect might be being hazed. Participants will leave with a copy of Indiana hazing laws.

Principles of Co-Curricular Learning: Core Communication (PCL 1), Critical Thinking (PCL 2), Understanding Society and Culture (PCL 5)
- Time: 45 minutes
- Technology Needs: Computer/projector
Mission Possible: Creating Your Purpose
Sponsored by: The Office of Student Involvement, Fraternity and Sorority Life
In this session, you will learn about you and create your own personal mission statement. Learn how your past has helped shape your values. You will further develop your own personal values to serve as a framework for contributing to others’ success and achieving your goals. This session will also help you develop time management skills, priorities, and methods to be more successful through your own definition of self.

Principles of Co-Curricular Learning: Core Communication (PCL 1), Critical Thinking (PCL 2), Values and Ethics (PCL 6)
- Time: 45 minutes
- Technology Needs: Computer/projector

Getting Involved
Sponsored by: The Office of Student Involvement
Student engagement and involvement is directly related to student learning and success. This presentation introduces students to opportunities to get involved in campus activities and student organizations and connects their involvement to transferable skills, student success, and building valuable relationships to peers, faculty, and staff members.

Principles of Co-Curricular Learning: Integration and Application of Knowledge (PCL 3), Intellectual Depth, Breadth, and Adaptiveness (PCL 4)
- Time: 30 minutes
- Technology Needs: Computer/projector

Unequal Resources
Sponsored by: The Office of Student Involvement, Social Justice Education
The Unequal Resources presentation introduces students to the concept of privilege and allows them to examine their own upbringing. Students will participate in an interactive activity that allows them to see how socioeconomics plays a role in society, challenging them to explore their attitudes toward people with different backgrounds.

Principles of Co-Curricular Learning: Understanding Society and Culture (PCL 5), Values and Ethics (PCL 6)
- Time: 45 minutes
- Technology Needs: Computer/projector

Crossing the Line
Sponsored by: The Office of Student Involvement, Social Justice Education
IUPUI is a very diverse campus that offers the opportunity for students to learn from others that come from different backgrounds. In the crossing the line activity students are invited to identify with several categories and experiences, hopefully resulting in empowerment and dissolution of stereotypes among classmates. This activity serves to create a safe space in which students can express their feelings and thoughts.

Principles of Co-Curricular Learning: Understanding Society and Culture (PCL 5),
- Time: 45 minutes
- Technology Needs: Computer/projector
What is Social Justice 101
Sponsored by: The Office of Student Involvement, Social Justice Education
The Social Justice 101 presentation introduces students to the concepts of power, privilege and oppression as well as terms related to social justice. Students will participate in an interactive activity that allows them to see their role in the social justice process and how they can engage in social justice activities on campus.

Principles of Co-Curricular Learning: Understanding Society and Culture (PCL 5), Values and Ethics (PCL 6)
- Time: 60 minutes
- Technology Needs: Computer/projector

Study Habits: A Guide to Getting A’s, Not Just Getting By
Sponsored by: The Office Educational Partnerships and Student Advocacy
This session will work with students to consider their academic and career goals. Students will evaluate their personal learning styles and determine the best way to create positive study habits that are conducive to their individual style. After considering these determinates, students will develop a plan to ensure best practices for their personal study habits in order to achieve academic success.

Principles of Co-Curricular Learning: Core Communication (PCL 1), Integration and Application of Knowledge (PCL 3), Intrapersonal Development (PCL 7)
- Time: 45 minutes - 1 hour
- Technology Needs: Computer/projector

Time Management in College
Sponsored by: Office of Educational Partnerships and Student Advocacy
This session encourages students to reflect on how they spend their hours in college and how to make the most use of their time. The session explores a 40 hour a week “block” schedule, looks at statistics in how students currently spend their time in college, explores social media’s role in time management, and looks at apps and other tools to help students maximize their time in college.

Principles of Co-Curricular Learning: Integration and Application of Knowledge (PCL 3), Intellectual Depth, Breadth, and Adaptiveness (PCL 4), Intrapersonal Development (PCL 7)
- Time: 45 minutes – 1 hour
- Technology Needs: Computer/projector/sound

Health and Wellness
To request a presentation through Health and Wellness, please visit http://studentaffairs.iupui.edu/health-wellness/hw-promotion/resources.shtml.

- Stress Management
  This presentation focuses on the stresses of college, including the causes and symptoms of stress, as well as the potential negative effects. Most importantly, students will learn a variety of ways to manage stress so that they may individualize their own approach. The presentation will integrate the concepts of stress management, life balance, and healthy living. An explanation of CAPS' services and how counselors may be able to assist in managing stress will also be provided.
• Alcohol 101
  This interactive presentation will focus on raising awareness about alcohol education and the negative consequences of drinking. Participants will actively learn what is a standard drink, how alcohol affects the body, and strategies to reduce high-risk behaviors and negative consequences from drinking. Emphasis will be encouraging students to be safe and make responsible decisions.

• Wheel of Choices: Making Healthy Choices
  Wheel of Choices will put a unique spin on the various health and wellness topics that students may face while in college. Some topics will include alcohol and drinking, sexual health, stress management techniques, sleep health, healthy eating, physical activity, and much more. This interactive presentation will focus on developing critical thinking skills and ways to incorporate behavior change.

• Building a Safer Community: Bystander Empowerment
  This interactive presentation will focus on raising awareness in order to recognize problem situations on campus and developing specific skills in order to intervene in a situation when another individual needs help.

• For additional presentation topics, please visit the Health and Wellness website at visit http://studentaffairs.iupui.edu/health-wellness/hw-promotion/resources.shtml.

The Office of Housing and Residence Life
There are over 250 events each year in the residence halls. Undergraduate Resident Assistants plan these events and programs and often times these programs are educational in nature. Examples include professors sharing a meal with residents and talking about their area of expertise, university staff members presenting on how to succeed in college, and community members speaking about succeeding in business, medicine, education, and in general. These programs occur each week and are set up in advance. Please contact Sara Dickey at sadickey@iupui.edu or Allison Wheeler at aloyal@iupui.edu for information about programs being offered in the residence halls this fall and spring. Both students who live on campus or off campus are welcome to attend.

Campus Recreation
For $15.00 per semester, students can enjoy the variety of recreational opportunities available at IUPUI to promote fitness and develop leadership, understanding, and respect.
