This guide is to provide resources to faculty members about why, how, and what opportunities exist to integrate co-curricular learning into their classrooms.

Why Co-Curricular Learning (pg. 3)
The first section provides research regarding the important role that co-curricular learning plays in the holistic development of a college student. Included are tips to integrate co-curricular learning into the classroom, sample assignments, and an event report for students to reflect on their experience as a participant of a campus event.

Presentation Guide (pg. 10)
The Division of Student Affairs offers a variety of presentations to inform students of the opportunities and resources available to support their educational experiences. These presentations are meant to compliment your work in the classroom. Students will learn about the campus community, how to get involved, social justice education, health and wellness, and much more. Some of these presentations are meant to focus on developing skills and identifying their strengths to allow them to become more confident in their ability to succeed.

Programming Guide (pg. 15)
There are events happening throughout every semester that provide students with development opportunities. This program guide is a comprehensive list of programs sponsored by the Division of Student Affairs through the Fall 2015 semester. Each program has been connected to the Principles of Undergraduate Learning (PULs) and Principles of Co-Curricular Learning (PCLs), so faculty can determine what will apply to the course learning objectives.

Why Co-Curricular Learning

Connecting Themed Learning Communities (TLC) and First Year Seminar courses (FYS) with other campus programs and activities can provide students with positive co-curricular learning experiences. Research describes the numerous institutional and student benefits of campus involvement:

- Student’s involvement in co-curricular activities directly correlates to higher levels of student engagement and success in the classroom and positively influences their connection to the institution (Ishler & Upcraft, 2005).
- Students react positively to interactions and support from faculty members outside of the classroom and feel encouraged to devote more effort to their education (Kuh, 2003; Isher & Upcraft, 2005).
- Student participation in various campus activities are positively associated with student learning and retention (Ishler & Upcraft, 2005).
- According to the National Survey for Student Engagement (NSSE) students who are involved in out-of-class activities are more likely to have diverse experiences (Kuh, 2003). Having multicultural interactions and relationships challenges students to see other perspectives and learn to effectively work with people from different backgrounds.
- The more students are academically and socially involved, the more likely they are to persist and graduate (Tinto, 2000).

Themed Learning Communities offer the opportunity for students to experience a community of peer support as well as ability to explore themes in context and interact with faculty and staff both inside and outside of the classroom. Integration of co-curricular activities into TLCs allows for greater student success along with faculty being able to demonstrate their commitment to creating a seamless learning environment.

Tips Faculty Should Consider when Integrating Co-Curricular Learning into Your Course

- Consider requiring attendance at co-curricular activities as part of the curriculum for the course. Attendance and participation should be awarded points so students understand the importance.

  Utilize the sample Campus Events Report Form.

- List out-of-class events on the course syllabus and discuss them on the first day of class.

- Encourage all members of the TLC instructional team to attend the out-of-class events together. This allows for increased student and faculty interaction and learning. It also provides opportunity for informal reflection to occur following the event.

- Ask students to reflect on their experience. Reflection can occur right after an event through discussion on what the students learned, asking students to write a paper detailing their experience, or a formal follow-up in a class discussion allowing for group dialogue.

- Collaborate with staff from the Office of Educational Partnerships and Student Advocacy in developing educationally purposeful learning activities that support the theme of your course. If you need additional assistance, email First Year Programs at fyp@iupui.edu.

- Additional information will be sent through the Campus Connections eNewsletter throughout the fall and spring semesters. This will go to the TLC/FYS faculty, advisors, mentors, and librarians. This is sent out every Monday throughout the academic year.

Suggestions on Connecting In-Classroom with Out-of-Classroom Learning

- Utilize your resources. The Division of Student Affairs offers many resources for faculty members to help the connection and reflection process through interactive workshops that include but are not limited to: educating students on the importance of campus and student involvement, diversity and social justice, civic engagement, community service, conflict management, and health and wellness. A complete list may be found at http://studentaffairs.iupui.edu/involved/first-year-programs/faculty-resources/index.shtml

- Plan class topics to align with co-curricular programs. This allows for immediate connections. Build up to the event and allow for intentional conversations that can challenge students to come to conclusions on their own.

- Assign writing/journal entries on the experiences. This encourages students to think critically about their experiences and allow you as the instructor to measure where the students are in their thought process and if they are applying what they learned to the classroom learning.

- Facilitate group dialogue on shared experiences. Building group discussions into the class following the event allows students to share their thoughts in the group setting which can provide the opportunity for learning from their peers.

- Use case studies to supplement learning. Creating scenarios for the students to work through individually or in groups that relate to the activities they attend allows the students to demonstrate their learning in a practical way. This can also allow for you to assess whether the students are building connections to class topics.
Sample Assignments to Connect the Curricular and Co-Curricular Learning

Connect to Yourself – Introductory Assignment
During the first several weeks of the semester, students are getting in touch with why they are in college, who they are, and what they want to accomplish. They are identifying their needs, interests, and goals. As students become more aware of themselves, they create a foundation to begin building networks that will support them. (Adapted from Northern Kentucky University)

- Students complete the typology assessments such as StrengthsQuest, Myers-Briggs Type Indicator or Holland Code to identify strengths, personality, conflict resolution, and career interests.
- Goal Setting: help students identify SMART (specific, measurable, attainable, realistic, timely) goals and begin thinking about what is available at IUPUI to support them.
- Activity/Assignment/Reflection: Students will be asked to synthesize information they have discovered about themselves; i.e., interests, goals, and services available at IUPUI. Recommend that students write a reflection paper or conduct a brief presentation to class about their strengths, goals, and areas they plan to utilize at IUPUI to help them move forward in their academic and career planning.

Involvement Expo
Require your student to join a pre-professional or student leadership organization and/or volunteer with a Community Service Agency. By attending the Involvement Expo on September 1st and 2nd during Weeks of Welcome students will have an opportunity to explore a variety of organizations both on and off campus. Ask them to write a reflection paper about the student organization or community service agency they chose, how it connects to their future goals and/or interests, and what they hope to contribute as a member or volunteer. Conduct a follow-up with the student mid-semester to see if they have indeed contributed as they had expected.

My IUPUI Story
As we all know college flies by, so have students take time to carefully consider what they want out of their college career. Have them map out their four years at IUPUI: students should consider whether they would like to study abroad, join student organizations, participate in campus traditions, get an internship, etc. Have them create SMART goals in order to accomplish those goals and create a timeline. Additionally, research contacts, programs, and dates so they are ready to take the next steps towards accomplishing their goals. Encourage the students to interview faculty, staff and student leaders about their experiences and how they reached their goals to help them develop their own plan.

IUPUI History, Pride and Traditions
This assignment will allow your students to practice the skills of evaluating resources and conducting college-level research while exploring the rich history of the IUPUI campus. Students will be assigned to a group of classmates and each team will select an area of the University history, traditions, and culture to explore. A list of possible topics will be provided, which may include Jaguar athletics, Greek life, student life, the role of women on campus, homecoming, alumni involvement, student governance, various academic programs, community engagement, past leadership and organizational structure, student services, etc. Each group will submit one researched-based paper that will be collectively developed by the team members. Each group will share their impressions of their topic through an in-class presentation and offer suggestions on new programs and initiatives to build upon campus pride and traditions. The presentations will be 10 minutes in length and will include a visual component such as Power Point, media, tri-fold, etc. Invite representatives from Division of Student Affairs to judge the presentations (and perhaps incorporate ideas from their presentations into future program initiatives).

Connect to Your Network Assignment - Attend the Campus Center Open House and/or Campus and Community Connections Fair

Request your student to identify and establish a relationship with at least one person on campus to be in their network. Provide an opportunity for students to intentionally and formally begin to build their network. This action will help them understand the relationship between identifying sources of support and then ACTING upon that knowledge.

- Encourage or assign students to interview or meet with a person(s) on campus to find out more about that person.
- Activity/Assignment/Reflection: Students share why they chose this person or office, what they learned from the interview, what they would like to share with others in the class about their choice, and how they envision expanding their network.
- Between mid-term and the end of the semester, students could be asked to identify at least one other person, meet with that person, and have an established network of at least two people. Student should be able to do this more on their own with periodic check in.
- An end of semester assignment could include an essay and/or a presentation related to building success networks at IUPUI and how it will benefit them throughout their college career and beyond.

Taking a Stand: What is Important to You

Require your student to identify an issue that is of importance to them.

- Develop a Wiki outlining the key components of the issue, why it is of value to the student, and how others can get involved. Include photos, related links, where you can go to learn more (on and off campus), etc. Then require them to share their webpage with classmates and allow for a community discussion or blog. You could provide examples of issues they may want to address.
- Another suggestion on how to incorporate this into a course assignment may be to ask the student to develop an educational program that could be hosted on campus to educate other students about the issue they choose. What would the program entail? Who else from the campus and surrounding community should be involved? What do they hope others will learn from attending the program?
- The Office of Educational Partnerships and Student Advocacy offers many interactive workshops that can assist in introducing students to diversity, social justice, civic engagement, and community service. Visit http://studentaffairs.iupui.edu/involved/first-year-programs/faculty-resources/index.shtml to request a presentation.

Several events could connect with this assignment throughout the Fall:

- Social Justice Fair during Weeks of Welcome
- Faces of America performance during Weeks of Welcome
- Bystander Empowerment and Sexual Assault Prevention programs
- Alcohol Awareness 101 programs
- Advancing Women Mentoring Program
- Leadership Foundations series
- Cultural Heritage Months
Student Leader Panel Discussion
Work with your mentor to put together a group of student leaders to share their experiences at IUPUI. It is also a great opportunity to highlight student organizations connected to a specific field of study. Contact the Office of Educational Partnerships and Student Advocacy to coordinate a panel of student leaders at fyp@iupui.edu.

Diversity Performance (Performer will be announced soon!)
Require your students to attend the program scheduled during Weeks of Welcome (refer to program guide for more information). Following the program, ask your students to write a reflection paper about the performance. Sample reflection questions:
1. What character(s) did you connect with the most and why?
2. What character(s) were difficult for you to relate to and why?
3. Which character do you think you'll find at IUPUI?

Community Service Projects
iServe program on Saturday, September 12th
Benjamin Barber (1992) wrote that “community service is an essential component of democratic citizenship. Service to the neighborhood and to the nation are not the gift of altruists but a duty of free men and women whose freedom is itself wholly dependent on the assumption of political responsibilities” (p. 246). Students will be able to expand their learning about their neighborhoods by participating in a service project that will benefit the IUPUI or surrounding Indianapolis community.
As a group, you can decide if the class would like to participate in a collective project or if, in small groups, students want to explore opportunities specifically of interest or write a personal reflection of the experience and the impact that performing service had on you and the impact you made on the community.

Paw’s Pantry: A Yearlong Volunteer Opportunity
Paw’s Pantry is a student-run food pantry in the IUPUI Campus Center that exists to serve all students, faculty, and staff through collaboration with the campus and community by fulfilling the need for an adequate food supply to promote success. During the academic year, Paw’s Pantry is open every Wednesday and Thursday from 10:00AM-6:00PM. The Pantry is always looking for dedicated volunteers that can assist shoppers and organize the Pantry during these hours. Sign up to volunteer for any 2 hour shift at: http://pawspantry.iupui.edu/signup.html

Contact Lorrie Brown in Center for Service and Learning at lorrbrow@iupui.edu for other ideas on how to incorporate service into the classroom.

AlcoholEdu Shared Experience Reflection
Did you know? All incoming undergraduate students were expected to complete a 2 hour online course on the topic of personal choices, alcohol education, and risk reduction prior to beginning classes at IUPUI. This course, called AlcoholEdu, now serves as a shared experience among first-year students and provides an excellent opportunity for additional reflection in an academic setting.
- Driving Questions: How is alcohol portrayed in popular culture? Are drinking consequences isolated to the individual, or are there secondary outcomes that affect others? What are the pros and cons of drinking? What barriers prevent people from seeking addiction recovery services?
• Assignment Ideas: Have students critically analyze the portrayal of alcohol in the media by collecting and reflecting on advertisements found online and in magazines. Have students create pros and cons lists about drinking – what strategies can be used to minimize or eliminate the cons? (e.g., risk-reduction behaviors, including but not limited to: abstinence).

• For more information about AlcoholEdu contact Eric Teske at erictesk@iupui.edu

Indiana Lifeline Law Critical Analysis

The Indiana Lifeline Law (http://indianalifeline.org/) provides immunity from underage drinking and public intoxication laws for individuals or groups who call the police in response to a crime, sexual offense, or health emergency. Proponents of the recently expanded law say that it will increase the likelihood that people receive emergency care by removing the fear of consequences for voluntarily disclosing underage drinking. Opponents argue that the law condones underage drinking and promotes excessive alcohol use by removing the threat of legal consequences. Students will learn about the local legislative process and engage their critical thinking skills by researching the Indiana Code and considering the potential implications of amnesty laws.

• Have students survey their peers to determine if the Indiana Lifeline Law is commonly known, or identify any misperceptions, and submit results to State Senator Jim Merritt. Write an essay identifying the major arguments for and against the Lifeline Law, and conclude by supporting your opinion with research. Design a social media campaign to raise awareness about the Indiana Lifeline Law.

Haven Shared Experience Next Steps

Students will demonstrate their ability to recognize and effectively manage ambiguous ideas, experiences and situations with a sexual assault awareness video assignment. Did you know? All incoming undergraduate students were expected to complete a 1 hour online course on the topic of sexual assault awareness education and prevention. This course, called Haven, now serves as a shared experience among first-year students and provides an excellent opportunity to develop critical thinking skills while engaging in a highly complex topic.

• Driving Questions: Are there contradictory messages about sex in our society? How do traditional views of masculine and feminine identities influence the risk for sexual assault? Define sober consent, and describe the relationship between alcohol and sexual violence. Make a video showing how you would explain the concept of sober consent to a high school senior transitioning to college.

• For more information about the Haven online program, contact Eric Teske at erictesk@iupui.edu

Attend a Housing and Residence Life Program

There are over 250 events each year in the residence halls. Undergraduate Resident Assistants plan these events and programs and often times these programs are educational in nature. Examples include: professors sharing a meal with residents and talking about their area of expertise, university staff members presenting on how to succeed in college, and community members speaking about succeeding in business, medicine, education, and in general. These programs occur each week and are set up in advance. Please contact Sara Dickey at sadickey@iupui.edu or Allison Wheeler at aloval@iupui.edu for information about programs being offered in the residence halls this fall and spring. Both students who live on campus or off campus are welcome to attend.
Campus Event Report

Consider requiring attendance at co-curricular activities as part of the curriculum for the course. Attendance and participation should be awarded points so students understand the importance. Here is a sample form you could have your student complete following the event.

Maybe they are wondering if they want to work at all, or when to work, or how much is too much to work! We can assist with that conversation by coming to your classroom to briefly discuss the potential value and detriment of work. Work that is ill-planned can be a downfall to a student, we can assist!

If you need our office to come to your class to talk about services, resumes or cover letters – please do not hesitate to reach out to us at http://employment.uc.iupui.edu/FacultyStaff/RequestaPresentation.aspx. Our webpage is also a great resource for students that seek to do some of the research/development on their own.

Michael Kent (Magician), 7:00pm, Campus Center Theater
In a style reminiscent of a late-night talk show, Michael invites the audience to laugh with him at the absurdity of a modern-day magician. He combines his sarcastic sense of humor with mind-blowing magic in a way that seems to let the audience “in on the joke.” This style has made Michael one of the college market’s top comedy-magicians, earning him loyal fans around the country in the process. As he tours college campuses all over the country, Michael’s audiences are experiencing what it is like when a stand-up comic performs (and occasionally pokes fun at) the art of magic.
